Smartfish Mouse Pad & Travel Pouch

While I use a mouse pad at my desk, I rarely have one with me as I travel because it seems like just one more thing to carry and I really would like to minimize that. The clever inventor at Smartfish Technologies seems to have solved the problem. Now my mouse pad can double as a pouch for the mouse and an extra cable or two. As a traveling mouse pad, this gadget fits the bill. The problem with not having a mouse pad when traveling is that you are never sure if you are going to be able to get your mouse to work with the surface you end up on, so a little something, anything, helps. In this case, I've got a nice padded neoprene mouse pad that works perfectly with my travel mouse. When I'm ready to go it folds in half, I drop the mouse and my gadget cords in the case and stuff the whole thing in my gadget bag. It is soft and padded so everything is protected from scratches. There is also a bit of a handle with snap which I guess I could use for securing it inside my bag, or maybe some people wear the whole arrangement from their belt. Let me know if that's you. Mine is in the bag. ■
